A new Astrophysics curriculum of 2nd year of Master’s degree common to the Universities of Lyon and Montpellier has started this September. Some classes are given by a teacher from Lyon, others by a teacher from Montpellier. Students in each University attend the classes either "live", or by videoconference, depending on the teacher's location. I will detail the curriculum's structure and present feedback from the first few weeks of operation.